The oldest museum in the world may be found in the city of Hara, the former capital of Japan. Since its foundation in 756, it has gone through all the changes of the Japanese empire without a single addition to its collection. The museum contains about 3,000 articles, which are said to be among the most beautiful specimens of decorative work which have ever been produced by human hand. The museum is opened on only one day of the year, when an official committee makes a visit of inspection to see that the collection remains intact.

"There are many thousands of people who will, of course, be disappointed that they cannot enjoy platform seats at the great Lincoln Memorial dedication, on Tuesday afternoon," he stated. "Physical conditions and the surroundings have made it impossible for the commission or Col. Sherrill to arrange for more than 5,000 seats for the occasion. Congress and the great officials of public life, with their families, and distinguished outside guests will occupy most of these seats.
